POWER-UP
BRAND STRATEGY

BRAND STRATEGY DECK

LET'S DISCUSS
YOUR BRAND
STRATEGY.

CORE BUSINESS.

Power-Up™ is not just a portable charger, it is:

- A continuity brand for modern, momentum-driven lives
- Starting with compact, on-demand energy as the hero product
- Designed for individuals who rely on constant access, movement, and control
- With built-in scalability into services, infrastructure, and everyday carry essentials

The brand must work psychologically first, functionally second.
Power is our foundation. Continuity is our language.

WHAT'S IN THE MARKET.

Apple MagSafe
Magnetic chargers,
the wireless standard

Belkin
Magnetic + cable chargers, best value for features

Anker
Magnetic + cable chargers, premium, high quality, durable

PowerBite
On-the-go chargers, first in the market to consider convenience, affordability and durability

WHY THEY'RE YOUR DIRECT COMPETITORS.

Even though the powerbank industry doesn't have a necessarily have one dominant brand, this still makes it more difficult to break into and dominate the market because:

- Those who do care about the brand will opt for one tailored for their phone. This audience is usually already a life-long loyal consumer and difficult to sway.
- People don't care about the brand as much as they care about functionality and practicality.
- In this day and age, it's quite easy to affordably rent powerbanks supplied at restaurants, nightclubs or even malls. At the same time, those same places can offer to charge your phone free of charge.

THE ANALYSIS.

APPLE MAGSAFE.

- Highly rated for convenience
- Official standard for wireless charging
- Premium, minimalist design
- Certified for Apple products
- Platform owner, but not product leader

BELKIN.

- Highly rated for durability
- Higher price tiers
- Premium, sleek designs for home and travel
- Wired and wireless options
- Multiple cable types usually supported
- Certified with MagSafe / Apple products
- Heat control and longterm battery health

ANKER.

- Highly rated for performance
- Aggressive and diverse price range
- Strong charging speed
- Wired and wireless options
- Multiple cable types usually supported
- Known for innovative designs

POWERBITE.

Strongest competitor in the UAE market

- Made for convenience
- Affordable price range
- Option for one-time use or rechargeable product
- Easy to use, practical design
- Already available in certain nightlife venues

COMPETITIVE LANDSCAPE.

KEY TAKEAWAYS

- The biggest competition is within design, price and lifestyle integration. Charging performance alone is no longer in question.
- Existing products take into consideration technology and specifications first when it comes to design, often leading to bulky aesthetics.
- The biggest market owners are tech companies, which helps easily build trust with consumers.
- The market is oversaturated with functional, durable powerbanks that are easy to purchase, rent or use.

WHAT'S MISSING

- No brand speaks directly to the consumer.
- The brands are functional but not emotional in a landscape that's now lacking connectivity and authenticity.
- Brands aren't taking advantage of being lifestyle-driven first.
- Brands that offer diverse price ranges usually sacrifice durability, functionality, convenience, or all 3.
- Existing products depend on consumers planning ahead, leaving little room for improvisation.

WHERE WE FIT IN.

- Lifestyle-driven design that prioritises modern life in a fast-paced environment. A design that works as a lifestyle accessory rather than just an emergency tool.
- A product designed for real-life moments, not ideal conditions. Think Type-B people, forgetful and almost never planning ahead.
- Brand ownership of urgency and psychological relief, turning a moment of panic into an opportunity to take control.
- Creating an emotional bond with consumers, owning the concept of continuity in a world that fears endings.

While competitors compete on speed, specifications, compatibility, or price, POWER-UP competes on continuity.

It reframes portable charging from “Something that charges your phone” to “Something that removes the risk of losing the moment.”

This positions POWER-UP not as another charger in the market, but as an essential accessory for modern living. It’s a brand that exists not to sell battery life, but to ensure nothing important is ever interrupted.

THE STRATEGY.

KEY GAPS IDENTIFIED.

WHAT EXISTS

- Spec-driven competition, prioritising performance over human relevance.
- Most powerbanks are designed for ownership and marketed as items consumers prepare in advance rather than accessories to have access to in moments of urgency.
- Product innovation centered around hardware rather than its role in people's daily lives.
- Chargers as passive tools not active safeguards.

WHAT DOESN'T EXIST

- A brand that owns the emotional space in the market, turning urgency and anxiety into core positioning.
- Charging your phone as the concept of continuity rather than convenience.
- A product built and designed for spontaneity and situational purchasing, focusing on lifestyle.
- Psychological reassurance as the core benefit of the brand, selling security as a service rather than battery power as a product.

TARGET AUDIENCE.

WHO THEY ARE

- Type-B, constantly on-the-go, fast-paced lifestyle
- Highly dependent on their phone
- Emotionally familiar with battery anxiety
- Risk-averse, prefer to be in control
- Self-reliant
- Appreciate aesthetics, lifestyle-driven

WHAT THEY DON'T WANT

- Tech-specific messaging
- A brand that doesn't consider the chaos of modern daily life
- Generic, low-quality branding
- Bulky or inconvenient designs, not straightforward or easy to use

WHAT THEY REALLY WANT

- The ability to always be in control of their situation
- Reassurance in vulnerable moments, relief from stress of the unexpected
- Reliability, confidence in the idea that the product will work without doubt
- Products that align with their lifestyle

LOGO STRATEGY.

PRIMARY LOGO

- Should convey calm under pressure
- Easily understood and recognisable without explanation
- Scalable for future apps and products

DESIGN IMPLIMENTATION

- Clean, bold, straight-to-the-point
- Confident, sharp, but not aggressive
- Intentional, no unnecessary clutter

The logo is designed for people with short attention spans, those who don't have the patience to stop, take a minute and dissect what the logo is trying to represent.

PRODUCT DESIGN.

THE POWERBANK

- Should be easy to understand and use, no complex step-by-steps
- Quick, on-the-go functionality
- Premium, sleek, aesthetically pleasing, lifestyle-inspired, urban

DESIGN IMPLIMENTATION

- Clean, bold, easily recognisable
- Simple, modern, but not boring or technical
- Not graphic-heavy or cluttered
- Logo to be clearly placed, but not too dominant

The design should feel friendly and familiar, but not too playful or gimmicky. It's confident and recognisable without needing to be too loud. The design speaks for the brand, rather than the other way around.

PACKAGING DESIGN.

THE PACKAGE

- NOT a box, easy to open
- Reassuring
- Minimal, but not cold
- Focus on brand and purpose

DESIGN IMPLIMENTATION

- Expressive, but not loud
- Brand personality can be shown here
- Simple, short messaging for reassurance

The package should be easy to open, easy to seal (if selling 2 products in 1 package). The brand personality can be much clearer here, offering a simple, short and reassuring message for our customers.

VISUAL DIRECTION.

BASED ON THE BRIEF

- Not too colourful
- Warm colours, but not too bright
- One or two colours to represent the brand
- Modern, design and aesthetics-driven
- Gender-neutral, not too masculine but not feminine
- Bold typography

THIS INSURES

- Timelessness
- Easy recognition
- Emotional trust built

This visual direction aims to keep things simple, straight-to-the-point, allowing POWER-UP to avoid over-explanation for an audience that doesn't have time to listen.

BRAND POSITION.

01.

A continuity-driven positioning that places the consumer's lifestyle at the centre.

One that allows POWER-UP to exist beyond a single product, and to operate with clarity, consistency, and purpose across every touchpoint; from urgent need to everyday movement, from moments of vulnerability to the restoration of control.

02.

A narrative that supports people in moments where interruption is not an option.

Through considered products and precise positioning, the brand creates reassurance, control, and immediate relief; without technical complexity, urgency-driven panic, or excess explanation.

PURPOSE

To ensure people remain uninterrupted in the moments where access, movement, and continuity matter most.

VISION

To become the default emergency brand people rely on globally to stay connected and in control in urban environments.

MISSION

To create a thoughtfully designed product that aims to eliminate the vulnerability of disconnection while ensuring people get to stay present, confident and in control.

POWER-UP is a lifestyle brand that safeguards access and control in moments where interruption is not an option.
